

LUSTER

During the Spanish colonial period, capiz shells were often used in windows instead of glass as they were easier to obtain and also filtered the light nicely. The Latin name of this shell is Placuna placenta, but it is also called windowpane oyster.

Capiz plays a starring role in four unique designs of our Luster collection. Each design, which is available as a tile, features a striking relief thanks to a creative technique: threads are glued onto the subsurface, after which water-soaked capiz is printed onto this pattern. Each design is available in two neutral and two bolder hues with a luxurious, natural pearlescent sheen.

Perula

The compact, uneven blocks of this rectilinear pattern create a uniform surface with the capiz shells, which have been hand-inlaid in different directions, gently diffusing the light.

Perula is available in 4 colourways.

Abalone

The beautiful bow pattern of capiz shells combines the luxurious look of a hand-made product with quirky charm.

Abalone is available in 4 colourways.

Cornice

Cornice is hand-made from capiz shells, adding an eye-catching finish to any wall. Arrange the tiles in different directions to create captivating patterns.

Cornice is available in 4 colourways.

Lucea

Lucea's timeless pattern will elevate any interior. The soft pearlescent sheen of capiz shells, the classic shape, the natural look and feel: every detail is in perfect harmony.

Lucea is available in 4 colourways.
